Brunssummerheide is a wonderful place to get a breath of fresh air, especially in summer. The paths between the dense pine forests are shady, the views over the deep purple hills with seas of fragrant heather are breathtaking. Numerous winding forest paths and long stretches through the loose silver sand run through this area, but this short walking route from Natuurmonumenten follows the sturdy, well-maintained paths near the catering facility, without seeking out the spectacular slopes of the rolling hills. This makes the route very suitable for people with walking difficulties or who move in a wheelchair.
