At the end of the seventies, the successful television series Diary of a Herdershond caused quite a stir in and around the South Limburg village of Eijsden. The narrow, lovely streets of the village made way for the director with his diverse demands. Extras were drummed up, local music was played and even rain was conjured up from the sky. During this walking route, the television series comes to life along the shooting locations in and around Eijsden. This works even better if you order, pick up or download the route booklet 'Through the decor of the Diary of a Shepherd Dog'.
