Netherlands

The soil around Voerendaal is rich in lime, which explains the special appearance of this landscape. Special lime plants grow on this soil, which sprout where the sheep herds create space for them with their peaceful grazing.

The chalky soil is also an ideal breeding ground for grapevines, which is proven by the authentic Limburg wine from the Fromberg wine estate. You can follow this route through and around Ubachsberg, the limestone quarry and the Kunderberg via a downloadable separate route description, which also lists the many places of interest. You can also follow him via the cream colored (white) posts.
