This walking route runs over part of the Crapoel Plateau, which was created by erosion of surrounding rivers and streams, such as the Geul. On the slopes of this plateau are several forests. One of these is the Onderstebos, the sloped forest through which you will walk on wide roads and narrow forest paths. In the forest you can see all kinds of flora and fauna, such as different types of wild roses. You also have a good view over the hilly area of South Limburg. The route leads you from Epen to Eperheide. In the area you will find plenty of parking options and restaurants. The route can be followed via the red posts.
