The cozy village of Mechelen is sheltered by the green hills of South Limburg on the rippling Geul. You can easily find a place to park, for example at Doctor Janssenplein, and you can visit the authentic Onderste Molen here. This mill is also called the Commandeursmolen, after the leader of the monastic order Malthazer Commandery, to whom we owe this historic site. If you follow the black posts out of the village, you will end up in the beautiful South Limburg hills, with their sloping meadows, shady groves and flowing streams. If you need a delicious lunch halfway through the route, don't forget to pay a visit to brasserie Hilleshagen.
