The Women's Forest Route is rightly the route to the gateway to the Heuvelland. This route of about 8 kilometers is very varied. You experience, as it were, the connection between city and hills.

The route offers the walker the diversity of the area: on various field roads, along field crosses, on sunken roads, footpaths, plateaus and through the Vrouwenbos. This grove is located in the middle of a slope in the agricultural landscape, where the undergrowth is heavily overgrown. Migratory birds such as the redwing, rook and greenfinch are frequently encountered here in the autumn. Due to the alternation of high and low, there are some beautiful views.
