In 2021, the volunteers of the Via Coriovallum Foundation suggested a plan to allow pilgrims to walk again on the old highways, over which pilgrims used to travel.

The Via Coriovallum was developed for this purpose. Heerlen is thus connected to the European network of pilgrim roads to Santiago de Compostela and Rome. The Via Coriovallum has also become a practice circuit for hikers who want to gain pilgrimage experience.

The Via Coriovallum is unique in many ways, both because of its route and the history of the area. Parts of this walk follow the 'Via Belgica', an important part of a large and complex network of Roman roads.
