During this walking route you will explore the valley of the Ur, a stream that flows from the hilly landscape of South Limburg into the Maas. At a height in the valley lies Stein, a Limburg town with a rich environment. For example, there is the castle park, with the ruins of Stein in the middle of an island, the last remnants of the original Stein. Along the way you will pass through 't Broek en Ziepe, a historic green area in the meadows of Stein, with rich vegetation and plenty of water. You will also pass the archeology museum Stein and Gasterie de Fontein. Download the route description and follow the orange posts (the sloping top of which indicates the walking direction).
