This walking route of more than 7 kilometers offers you diverse landscapes, which are very special even for South Limburg. The route takes you over a plateau, past graves, fruit orchards and field crosses. But the environment of the Spaubeekerbos takes the cake: sunken roads and old grooves lead you through a green, somewhat surreal landscape. There have been many gravel pits in this area in ancient times, but today many plant and animal species are observed. Also in the forest is a ruin of an open-air theater from the 1920s, which at the time was used by the local population for music and stage performances.
